John Callaway

CONSUMMATE
JOURNALIST
October 16, 2003

John Callaway came to Chicago in 1956 with 71 cents in his pocket and changed American radio and public television forever, winning 14 Emmys and a Peabody along the way. A one-man media conglomerate, Callaway has reported crimes, interviewed celebrities, moderated debates, edited a magazine, produced documentaries and written and starred in a play.

Joseph Epstein

AUTHOR, EDITOR
& SCHOLAR
February 19, 2004

Joseph Epstein is a rare sort of playful pedant, who in his many essays expounds on subjects as mundane as snoring and as erudite as Max Beerbohm's thoughts on Freudianism. The native Chicagoan and author of the best-seller Snobbery, the American Version, Epstein also edits and lectures at Northwestern University.
